ADMIT MATERIAL WITHOUT DUTY

Quite Evident That Republicans Will Pass Such a Bill for San Francisco.

SHUT THE DEMOCRATS OUT

House Not to Consider Such a Measure Offered By Minority Members

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 26.—It is evident that the Republican rulers of the flouse intend to pass a bill authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Treasury to admit free of duty building materials imported for use in rebuilding San Francisco. Representative Gaines, of Tennessee, introduced the first bill of this character, but it has been followed by two bills of the same character, introduced by Republicans. That Republican members should introduce such measures is most significant, indicating that there is a sentiment on the majority side of the House in favor of such legalation, per se, perhaps, and as showing, probably, that the Republican leaders have made up their minds to cancet such legislation as will give the rebuilders of the rulned city the benefit of free importations of structural iron and steel.

For it is the settled policy of the majority of the House not to allow any bill introduced by a Democrat to go on the statute books.

Observers of Congress have come to guess pretty accuracily that when a Democrat proposes legislation on any subject, and a Republican comes along a little later with a bill on the same subject, a law embodying the principles of the two bills will be enacted. It is the Republican member's bill which is reported to the House and put into law.

Only Debate in Senate.

ported to the House and put into law.

Only Debate in Senate.

There will be little debate in the House over the bill for the relief of San Francisco. If the bill should be reported from the Committee on Ways and Means, as seems most probable, a rule limiting the debate to two or three hours will be reported also and adopted. This will prevent Democrats from making speeches on the tariff for use in the campaign this fall. But the bill can be discussed while the House is in Committee of the Whole House on other bills, so that the Democrats will get into the record all the matter desired.

And when the bill goes over to the Senate, where there is real debate and real

And when the bill goes over to the Senate, where there is real debate and read eliberation, surviving the days when both houses of Congress were "deliberative" bodies, the entire subject of tariff taxation will be discussed, and amendments galore will be offered, taking the tariff duties off innumerable articles of everyday consumption. Why should the stricket city of San Francisco be relieved organient of tribute to the steel trust, and the rest of the country compelled to continue payment? Public calamity is not necessary to relieve people of the burden of a taxation for the meneit of a special class.

Representatives Jones, of the First District, returned to-day from a short tripi to see his constituents, for the purpose of making sure that his fences are secure against the efforts to break in which are being made by Mr. Otho Mears, of Northampton county. Mr. Jones spoke to a large crowd at Montross, Westmorehand county, on Monday.

"I am thoroughly well satisfied with the outlook," said Mr. Jones, but he did not care to discuss the canvass at length. He and Mr. Moars have been personal and political friends for years, and it is evident that the campaign will be "conducted along the highest known lines."

An Alabama member of the House of Representatives said to-day that the defeat of Representative John H. Bankhead, of Alabama, by Captain Richmond P. Hobson, for the Democratic nomination to Congress, was largely due to the vote cast by Representative Bankhead for the continuance of the appropriation of $147,000 to the Southern Railway for fast mail facilities between Washington and New Orleans, Captain Hobson is said to have taken advantage of the general anti-railway sentiment of the country and forced the fighting on Mr. Bankhead along this line.

senator from Wisconsin stated specifically that he was replying to certain contentions of the senator from Texas. It was evident that Mr. Bailby did not believe his own speech was being answered. It was also pretty evident that the Senate generally, without respect to party predilections, felt about the same way. As compared to the speech delivered by Senator LaFollette. Senator Spoener's colleague, last week, the speech delivered to-day by the genior senator from Wisconsin was not worthy of serious consideration. It is the universal opinion that Senator LaFollette's speech was the most comprehensive ever delivered on the subject of railroads in either branch of Congress, just as Mr. Bailey's was the abelst discussion of legal questions affecting the proposed rate bill that Congress has heard.

Senator Tillman, who has charge of the rate bill on the floor of the Senate, is still failing in his constant efforts to have the Senate agree on a day for voting. The discussion may last a month yet. The end is not within sight of the Senate, and it may not come before June. Senator Daniel expects to speak to-morrow if Mr. Spooner concludes in time.

A Three-Hour Speech.

A Three-Hour Speech. Mr. Speener spoke to-day for three hours, and then gave notice that he would continue his remarks to-morrow. He addressed himself especially to Mr. Bailey's amondment, taking from the inferior Federal Courts the right to enjoin against the execution of the orders of the Inter-State Commerce Commission, contending State Commerce Commission, contending that such an exercise of power would be the first step toward the destruction of the power of the judiciary and result in an undesirable blending of the co-ordinate branches of government. He also discussed at length the distinction between "jurisdiction" and judicial power." The address was technical and connsisted largely of quotations from legal decisions.

The Wisconsin Senator referred to a case in which the Attorney-General had criticised a judicial decision and and been replied to by the court.

Mr. Balley suggested that "interesting as this episode had been, it was not as interesting as a more recent episode," referring to the President's criticism of Judge Humphrey in the beef-packing cases, "las Jusigo Humphrey gone back on the bench to respond to the criticism of himself?" asked the Texas Senator, "Has the Senator jurisdiction to ask that question?" queried Mr. Spooner, and replying, said that he had not, but that he had 'judicial power to do so."

Session Given Up to Scattering Discussion With Appropriations As Pretext.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The agricultural appropriation bill again furnished the theme for discussion in the House to-day, although but fow references were made to the subject matter of the bill.

Under the latitude of general debate the leaders on the Republican sid began "Midelne-making" for the approaching congressional campaign, Mr. Hepburn (Iowa), predicting that tariff revision and protection would furnish the main issue of the campaign.

Mr. Boutell (Illinois), replied to the "watch trust" speech of Mr. Ramey (Illinois), while Mr. Sulzer (New York), talked on the American Merchant Marine and Mr. Sims (Tennessee), on the free rural delivery boxes.

Mr. Sims inveighed against the postoffice department compelling the farmers of the United States to purchase "truct" made rural free felivery boxes," instead of permitting the farmer to make his own rural box.

Mr. Hepburn took up the charge made by Mr. Rainey (illinois), that steel rails made in the United States were sold cheaper abroad than in this country and challenged him to furnish the proof.

Mr. Rainey was instantly on his feet, asserting that James J. Illi, President of the North Pacific, had testified to the fact before a Senate sub-committee investigating the subject of trusts several years ago.

Mr. Williams (Mississipph, said that the late Daniel Lamont had told him the same thing in so many words and he was authorized then to use his name and he would produce the evidence in due season.

In one on two Instances prospective voryers declined to subscribe to the pledge out the official ballot, and left without voting. There were no disturbances or semblances of disorder about the polling places, however, and little or no bitterness was displayed by the candidates or their friends. The returns came in promptly. At Sanger Hall, where they were announced, with the exception of Second Marshall, which was very late in arriving.

The Fourth Madison was the first '9 report, as usual. Mr. W. P. Leanman brought these returns in at $45 and First Clay was next, arriving at $405. First Lefferson and Third Marshall were in by 9 o'clock, and then the boxes poured in from all over the city.

The heavy votes polled for President Turpin, Councilman John J. Lynch and Morgan R. Mills, of Jefferson, and Emilion G. Williams, of Monroe, provoked, and when it was known that Alderman Donohue had won out, he was given an ovation by his friends.

The entire vote polled was about 3,500, and City Treasurer James B. Pace got nearly all of those. He lost one or two now and then at a preclinct, but the total number of scratches applied to him would not amount to over twenty-five or thirty in the city.

The Aldermen chosen without opposition had practically the same experience, They were Messrs. M. Phill Seay and Sampel H. Cottrell, of Clay; Maux Gunst, of Monroe; Burton H. Grundy, of Henry. They got nearly all the voice cast in their respective wards.
